

ART 2.4 Support to Targeting and Information Superiority

Intelligence support to targeting and information superiority is the task of providing the commander information and intelligence support for targeting through lethal and nonlethal actions. It includes intelligence support to the planning and execution of direct and indirect fires and the Army information tasks of information engagement, command and control warfare, information protection, OPSEC, and military deception, as well as assessing the effects of those operations. (FM 2-0) (USAICoE)
 Note: This task branch supports both direct (ART 1.4) and indirect (ART 3.3) delivery of fires.

This task is also linked with ART 5.1.4.3 (Provide Combat Assessment).
